THE NFL FANTASY SEASON STARTS NOW

HOW IT WORKS

Fantasy owners

Each team is managed and coached by a single participant, the team's owner.

Fantasy teams

Made up of individually drafted quarterbacks, running backs, wide receivers, tight ends and kickers, plus a single team's defense/special teams unit.

Fantasy league

Normally consists of 8 to 14 teams who compete against one another every week.

Weekly lineups

Fantasy owners adjust their starting lineups each week of the season based on which teams their players are facing in actual NFL games. Their decisions may be informed by player availability, individual matchups, bye weeks and gut instincts about a player's performance.

Weekly wins

Owners win each week by scoring more total points than their opponent. Enough wins throughout the season can result in a playoff berth.

Contests

Everyone loves a good halftime show. A great way to engage your Fantasy Draft guests is to hold a trivia contest or drawing. This will get the fan base fired up and keep them coming back!

Contest examples

The first person to guess who led the league in rushing for the 2024 season gets a free drink. Visit nfl.com/stats for more ideas like this.

Draw the name of an NFL team out of a hat. Those who are wearing that team's jersey or colors get coupons for free food or drinks to encourage their continued participation with the establishment.

Premium seating

No team wants to get caught with too few players on the field. Make sure each league has plenty of space and enough light to make the right choices.

Bring down the noise

We all know noise can be distracting and plays a huge part in making poor decisions. Make sure the music is down so owners can concentrate.
